About Aichi

Located at the center of Japan, Aichi Prefecture is often coined as the heart of Japan. Its capital city, Nagoya, is the fourth largest city in the country in population. Aichi is also home to the largest automotive manufacturer in the world, Toyota Motor Corporation. Although Nagoya is modernized with iconic and futuristic landmarks, its majestic Samurai history and the natural hidden gems in suburban areas are still well-preserved until today. The beauty of the four seasons in Aichi offers extraordinary views and unforgettable experiences from spring to winter which will mesmerize the eyes of anyone who encounters it.

It is definitely a must-visit destination in Japan!

Aichi's GASTRONOMIC LEGACIES, THE “NAGOYA MESHI”

A combination of Aichi's capital city name, "Nagoya," and the Japanese word for meal, "meshi," the term expresses all the food that represents the true "Aichi." Nagoya Meshi is famous not only in Aichi but throughout Japan for being tasty, distinctive, and nutritious. Aichi has a strong and rich traditional history that is reflected in its flavors. Its food culture has always been recognized as unique, thanks to its distinctive culture, historical ties with other regions, climate, vegetables, and other ingredients. Nagoya Meshi does not only mean a delicacy that originated in Nagoya; it also includes dishes that the people of Aichi have embraced and adopted as their own. Visitors should certainly try authentic Nagoya Meshi while traveling in Aichi.
